Mrs Turnbull

I can't believe what a change I have noticed recently within my school community. Every day I see such smiley, happy faces walking through the playground ready for the day ahead, pupils greeting each other, asking one another how they are, laughing and carrying on. It's so great to see. In fact, it is something that I would have longed to have had when I was going through primary school. You see, my primary school experience wasn't filled with laughter, happy times and carrying on with my best friends - instead I was bullied, made of fun of and called mean names just like Mikey, who I'm sure you all know! That's why I think it is so important that the pupils within my primary school know about bullying, know what to do if they themselves or someone they know is being bullied, but most of all know how to be kind to one another.

That's why, when I saw the videos our pupils had made to raise awareness about bullying I could have (pause and smile) burst with pride! It made me realise, and I'm sure the rest of the pupils in our school, in a world where you can be anything, be kind.
