Samantha

That is the last time I do a group project with Betty. She is so controlling and doesn't let me do anything to help or anyone else for that matter. She thinks she can do everything on her own, that others only slow her down and mess things up, so much so that one time she ripped up some of my drawings for the rainforest project because apparently they weren't good enough. Group work used to be my favourite activity but now I always cross my fingers and my toes when Mr Robinson is putting us into groups, hoping that I don't end up with Betty, the perfectionist and know-it-all. I want to work with people in my class who want to be part of a team and enjoy working together, not someone who thinks they are better than everyone else.
